How does the game play? Three different particle types make up each turn: The three basic types of particles (numbered pieces): 2, 4, 6, and 8 The three basic types of "simple" particles (simple numbers): 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14 The fundamental particles: 1, and/or 2, and/or 3 The different types of particles (at the top) are represented with numbered pieces. The first three types of particles (numbered pieces) are combined in accordance with simple arithmetic, up to 15, resulting in a different particle of type A. A similar operation is performed with the second type of particles (simple numbers) to create a particle of type B. The fundamental particles (1 and/or 2 and/or 3) are combined according to their number (1, 2, 3). When combined, each particle represents something physically, either an emptiness or a particle. The three types of particles function in the following combinations: Numbers: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 Color: blue, yellow, and red Values: 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 Cubes: 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 The combinations are the following: Numbers: 1 and 2, 1 and 3, 2 and 3 Color: blue and yellow, red and yellow, blue and red Values: 0, 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 Cubes: 0 and 1, 0 and 3, 1 and 3, 2 and 3 Each particle can cover either one or more of the spaces on the grid. A blank space is created in the grid when a void tile appears on top of a particle, and is unoccupied in the future. The number of unoccupied spaces in a level is governed by the score of the level. Different levels require different numbers of unoccupied spaces. This way a skilled player can predict the time to create a void tile to get the most unoccupied spaces in the level. Once a level reaches its maximum number of unoccupied spaces, the void tile will reappear on top of c9d1549cdd
